The plaintiff said the defendant met him in Angust last and asked him if he had any property to sell. He said he had, and introduced him to Mr. Sin Asin one of the owners of the property in question. An agreement was entered into for the sale and purchase, the price being $110,000. According to the plaintiff the defendant was to pay one per cent brokerage, but according to Sin Asin, who was called as a witness on his behalf, one balf in difficulties and unable to complete, and original vendor for 371,000. The price at which Sin Asin had bought it was $90,000. The defence was that the plaintiff, when he offered the property to the defendant, said defendant need not pay him the brokerage at once, that he knew of another man who wanted the property and he would certainly be able to resell at a profit, and payment of brokerage was made contingent on the resale of the property, that condition had not been carried out, and therefore the plaintiff was not entitled to brokerage. The defendant said the plaintiff wanted to sell the property to him first and then to the other man in order that he saked him if he thought it was honest on the part of a broker to do that. The defendant said it was what they all did and as to whother i was honest or not their own hearts would know about that. HOME AND CHINA AFFAIRS FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, 26th May. To my mind political matters are in a most unsatisfactory state, and I consider the present Ministry, combined with the action of the Free Traders, directly responsible for the situation. That there had been a strong undercurrent of a democratic and a revolutionary nature, there can be nodoubt whatever, and that this has becomes power in the state and is developing dangerous energy. there can be as little. According to the Constitution, the Sovereign indirectly, and the Cabinet directly, are responsible for the good government of the country, but as matters now work the power of the Sovereign appears to have become eliminated, and the Cabinet holds itself responsible slone to the House of Commons. Thus the party in power, being assured of its majority in that house, can do precisely what they may please. If the House of Commons represented the people it would be another thing, but when, se at present, that is just the very thing it does not do, the country is governed unconstitutionally, to use a mild torm. In other words, the country is at the mercy of the democratic and revolutionary Caucuses.

Let me demonstrate what I have laid down; the facts which I shall submit are so patent and potent that they can only lead to one conclusion. I need not repeat what I have so often urged in previous letters, that the constitutional mode of administering the laws of the country, is by party government. Now, whatever the differences on the subject of Ireland; and unless Mr. Gladsator, he had no idea of making Ireland the question of the hour when he took office. Mr. Gladstone had not then reckoned with the ravolutionary canonics. In forming his Ministry he knew that he had to make terms with the leader of the Canouses, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, but he thought that an Under-Secretaryshipa similar arrangement had been entered into, would be acceptable. Can anything be more unconstitutional than this? And then let me take a glance at the manner which this Bill was carried. Its authors well knew that even with the majority they had no chance to pass the bill by fair means. They saw that they must initiate a reign of terror in Ireland. They therefore allowed the Protection of Property Bill to lapse, they simultaneously expressed sympathy with the Land Loague, and says Sir William Harcourt; "every prudent they declared there was no necessity to resort to Government makes bargains; there was nothing exceptional means. It also involved the release of the convict Davitt, who had originated the Land League. It should be borne in mind, that the Ministry and the League had thrown off all side issues and had entered upon open warfare. The object the Ministry had in view was to enforce the payment of rent. The Land League depended on tirely on its ability to prevent this. The weapon of the Ministry was eviction; that of the Land Longue, assassination. As sylotions were carried out by a posse, assassination could not be brought to bear, and as the evioted were thrown on the hands of the Land League, the weak point in their armour was pierced. They had overshot the mark, the landlord could not relet in case of THE NEW GOVERNOR OF BUSSIAN eviction, but as be could get no reut in any case he naturally turned on the tenants who had cobbed him. THE SIMLA SAPPHIRES.

The discovery of the sapphires is said to have taken place in this wise. Near the snot where the stones are found lives a Bhot Lamba or monk, who first observed the pale blue vein in the rook. He broke off pieces, which he took to be white surma (antimony) and exchanged them with traders for sugar, tobacco, &c., keeping it carefully concealed from whence he obtained his treasures. Last sutumn he disposed of a lot to some Lahoul men (those who took them to Simla). He had one very fine place, which he valued much but nofortunately for himself he was persuaded by snother of his protherhood. for the purpose of having a Shib made The man to whom it was given took it on to Cashmere and made it over to a stone-outtor to make into an idel. A man who has seen the place states that there is a round meter, running into the billside, which has been vation, from all accounts, appears to be about 12,000 feet, and is on the road to Zauskar. The Maharajah will doubtless obtain the Fervices and the surroundings of the view, which sent agents up to purchase. Those in possession keep the fact very quiet, and refuse as a rule to sell, hoping the market may rise, or fearing that the pieces may be foreibly taken from them. It. does not appear to have been as yet desided what these stones are, but it will be doubtless settled before long. TANGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY. WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the WALLS CASTLE, British barque, H. A. Brown. Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objeots in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are DEST known remedy for Nervousness, Indigeshere given in ontense. Each and every word is rangements; extensively used in the Army and Navy fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises and highly recommended by the Medical Faculty.

DR. BRIGHT'S PHOSPHODYNE, for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being purefully marked on the best principle bitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained and dispensing with these yest margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications.

from Obsolete Formulæ, they are absolutely unre-To illustrate the vast soops of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration :-Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,600 Chinese characters, and Medburst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English pansary, and Shanghai Pharmaoy. words, and upwards of 600,000, Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various appli-eations and equivalents of different words which in nervous debility, spermatorrhom, do.
